SECTION 1 OF 5

Writing Emails That Sound Like You

Stop staring at a blank screen. These prompts write the email draft — you just clean it up.

PROMPT 01

Cold Outreach / Intro Email

> Use when you want to reach out to someone new — a potential client, collaborator, or partner.

Write a short, warm cold outreach email from me to [name or type of person]. I'm [your name], founder of [your business]. I [what you do in one sentence]. I'm reaching out because [specific reason — be honest]. Keep it under 150 words. No fluff. Don't oversell. End with a low-pressure ask like scheduling a quick call or just asking if they're open to connecting.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Hi Sarah, I'm Stephanie, founder of Canopy Academy — I teach women how to build income with AI tools. I came across your work at [Company] and genuinely loved your post on [topic]. I'd love to connect — no agenda, just think we're working on similar things from different angles. Open to a 15-minute call sometime this month?"

PROMPT 02

Follow-Up After a Call or Meeting

> Use within 24 hours of any discovery call, coffee chat, or sales conversation.

Write a follow-up email after a meeting with [name]. We talked about [2-3 key topics from the meeting]. The next step we agreed on was [next step, or "nothing specific yet"]. Keep it short, warm, and professional. Recap the main things, restate the next step, and leave the door open without being pushy.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Hey Marcus, great connecting today. Loved hearing about what you're building with [topic]. As we discussed, I'll send over the proposal by Thursday. Looking forward to it — feel free to reach out with any questions in the meantime."

PROMPT 03

Client Check-In / Relationship Nurture

> Use to stay top of mind with past clients or warm leads without it feeling like a pitch.

Write a short check-in email to [client name]. We worked together on [project] about [timeframe] ago.
I'm not trying to sell anything — I just want to see how things are going and stay connected. Make it feel personal, not like a newsletter. Under 100 words.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Hey Jenna, just thinking about you — how did the launch go? I remember you were nervous about the pricing. Hope it went better than expected. No agenda here, just checking in. Let me know how things are going when you get a minute."

PROMPT 04

Responding to a Difficult Client

> Use when a client is frustrated, confused, or pushing back on something.

Help me write a professional, calm response to a difficult client email. Here's what they said: [paste their message]. My goal is to acknowledge their frustration, clarify the situation, and move us forward. I don't want to be defensive or overly apologetic — just clear and confident. Keep it under 200 words.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Hi [Name], thank you for flagging this — I hear you and want to make sure we get this right. Here's where things stand: [clear explanation]. My recommendation is [next step]. Let me know if you'd like to hop on a quick call to align. I'm here to make this work."

PROMPT 05

Sharing a New Offer or Service

> Use when you want to announce something new to your existing network or client list.

Write an email announcing my new [product/service name] to my existing clients and contacts. Here's what it is: [describe it in 2-3 sentences]. Here's who it's for: [describe the ideal person]. The price is [price]. The main benefit is [one clear outcome]. Keep the tone confident but not pushy. End with a clear call to action.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "I've been quietly building something I'm really proud of — and I think you're going to want to know about it. [Product name] is [what it is], designed for [who]. I'm opening it up this week at [price]. [CTA: link or reply to this email to get access]."

PROMPT 06

Asking for a Testimonial or Review

> Use after you've delivered results for a client — the best time to ask is right after a win.

Write a short, warm email asking [client name] for a testimonial or review. We just finished working on [project] and the result was [positive outcome]. I want to ask in a way that feels natural, not transactional. Give them a few guiding questions so it's easy for them to write something. Keep it casual.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], I'm so glad [project] turned out the way it did — that result was all you. I'm putting together some client stories and would love to include yours if you're open to it. No pressure at all — if you are, a few sentences on [what changed for you] would be amazing. Just reply here or drop it in a Google doc."

SECTION 2 OF 5

Creating Content in 5 Minutes

You don't need to be a writer. You need to know what you want to say — and let AI say it first.

PROMPT 07

Instagram Caption from a Topic or Result

> Use when you have an idea or a win but can't find the words.

Write an Instagram caption for a post about [topic or result]. My audience is [describe: e.g., women entrepreneurs, small business owners, women learning AI]. My voice is confident, direct, and a little bold — not fluffy. The caption should start with a hook that stops the scroll, share a real insight or story, and end with a question or CTA. No hashtags in the caption. 3-5 short paragraphs.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Nobody told me AI could close my deals for me. I figured it out myself, six months in, after I accidentally sent a prompt-written DM that booked a $2K client in one conversation.
> That's when I realized most people are using AI for the wrong things.
> What would you use AI for if you knew it actually worked?"

PROMPT 08

LinkedIn Post from a Personal Experience

> Use to turn a real moment, win, or observation into a post that builds authority.

Write a LinkedIn post based on this experience: [describe what happened in 2-4 sentences]. My audience is [professionals, founders, women in business]. Make it first-person, direct, and genuine. Start with a one-line hook. Tell the story briefly. Extract the insight or lesson. End with a question to spark comments. No corporate language. No em dashes.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "I almost didn't post this. I spent six months building a product nobody asked for, then pivoted in one conversation.
> Every discovery call wanted the same thing: how do I use AI to actually run my business?
> Lesson: your customers are already telling you what to build. Are you listening?"

PROMPT 09

5 Hook Ideas for a Reel or TikTok

> Use when you know your topic but can't figure out the opening line.

Give me 5 scroll-stopping hook ideas for a short video about [topic]. My audience is [describe]. The hook should be the first line someone hears — it needs to create curiosity, make a bold claim, or call out the viewer directly. Keep each hook under 12 words. Give me a mix of styles: POV, question, statement, number, and story.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

- → POV: You used AI to write a proposal that landed a $3K client.
- → Nobody's teaching women this — so I am.
- → The prompt that replaced two hours of my week.
- → 5 things AI can do for your business right now.
- → I was scared to use AI. Then it made me money.

PROMPT 10

Newsletter Intro Paragraph

> Use to open a weekly or monthly email in a way that pulls people in.

Write the opening paragraph for my email newsletter this week. The topic is [topic]. My brand voice is [confident, warm, direct — not corporate or fluffy]. Start with something that feels like you're talking to a friend, not broadcasting to a list. Make them want to keep reading. Under 100 words.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "I almost didn't send this one. But then I thought about the six people who emailed me last week asking the exact same question — and I figured if they're asking, you probably are too. So let's get into it."

PROMPT 11

Repurpose One Idea into 3 Formats

> Use to get more mileage out of one piece of content without starting from scratch.

I wrote this [post/email/caption]: [paste your content]. Help me repurpose it into 3 different formats: (1) a short LinkedIn post, (2) an Instagram caption, and (3) a tweet or X post. Keep the core message the same but adjust the length, tone, and style for each platform.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> Three formatted versions of your content — ready to copy-paste onto each platform with platform-appropriate length and energy.

PROMPT 12

Caption for a Behind-the-Scenes Moment

> Use when you want to show your process or a real moment without it sounding vague.

Write an Instagram caption for a behind-the-scenes moment. Here's what happened: [describe the moment in 2-3 sentences — could be building something, a messy desk, a win, a failure, a decision]. Make it feel real and human. My audience is women who want to build businesses and see themselves in what I'm doing. Don't make it inspirational-quote-y. Just honest.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "This is what 11pm building mode looks like. No ring light. Just me, my laptop, and a deadline I made up for myself. Building something before it's ready is terrifying. Shipping it anyway is the only way I know how to grow."

SECTION 3 OF 5

III

Responding to Clients Like a Pro

Keep your standards high and your stress low.

PROMPT 13

Setting Expectations or Boundaries

> Use at the start of any new project or when a situation is getting unclear.

Help me write a professional message to [client name] to clarify expectations about [scope, timeline, communication, revisions, etc.]. I want to be firm but not harsh. I want them to feel respected and clear on how we're working together. Keep it under 150 words.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], excited to get started on this. Before we dive in, I want to make sure we're aligned on a few things: [list 2-3 clear expectations]. This keeps things smooth for both of us. If anything comes up outside of this scope, I'm happy to discuss — just want us both to have a clear picture from day one."

PROMPT 14

Delivering News About a Delay or Change

> Use when something shifts on your end and you need to communicate it without losing trust.

Write a message to [client name] letting them know about [delay or change]. The reason is [brief honest explanation]. I want to be upfront, not over-apologize, and immediately offer a solution or revised timeline. Keep it confident and brief.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], I wanted to give you a heads up — [deliverable] is going to be pushed to [new date] due to [brief reason]. I know that's not what you were hoping to hear. Here's my plan to make up for it: [specific action]. You'll have everything by [date]. Thank you for your patience."

PROMPT 15

Saying No Politely

> Use when you need to decline a request, extra scope, or project without damaging the relationship.

Help me write a polite but firm response declining [request or project]. I want to say no without over-explaining, leaving the door open if appropriate, and keeping the relationship warm. Under 100 words.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], thank you so much for thinking of me for this — I genuinely appreciate it. After looking at what's on my plate, I'm not able to take this on right now and give it the attention it deserves. I'd rather be upfront than overpromise. [Optional: I'd be happy to connect you with someone who might be a great fit.]"

PROMPT 16

Handling a Price Objection

> Use when a potential client says "that's too expensive" or asks for a discount.

Write a confident response to a client who said my price is too high. My price is [price] and the service/product is [what it is]. I don't want to discount — I want to hold my price while making the value feel obvious. Keep it calm, not defensive.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "I hear you — and I appreciate you being upfront. The price reflects [specific value: the result, time saved, expertise]. I'm not able to adjust it and still deliver what I know works. If budget is the barrier right now, I have [lower-priced option] that might be a better starting point. But if you're ready to move forward on the full scope, I'm ready when you are."

PROMPT 17

Wrapping Up a Project Professionally

> Use at the end of any engagement to close strong and leave the door open for more.

Write a project wrap-up message to [client name]. We just completed [project]. The main results were [outcomes]. I want to leave them feeling great about what we built, remind them what they have now, and open the door to future work without being salesy.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], we did it. I'm really proud of what we built together — [recap of deliverable and result]. Everything you need going forward is [where to find it]. It's been a pleasure working with you. If you ever want to [next natural step], I'd love to continue. In the meantime, you've got everything you need to run with it."

PROMPT 18

Checking In When a Client Goes Quiet

> Use when a prospect or client has gone silent after expressing interest.

Write a short, casual check-in message to [name] who I haven't heard from in [timeframe]. We were in conversation about [topic or project]. I don't want to sound desperate or pushy — just want to see if they're still interested and keep the relationship warm.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], just circling back — no pressure at all. Wanted to make sure my last message didn't get lost in the shuffle. Still happy to [pick up where we left off / answer any questions]. Let me know either way — I appreciate you."

SECTION 4 OF 5

IV

Pitching Without Feeling Salesy

The best pitch doesn't feel like one.

PROMPT 19

DM Opener That Doesn't Feel Like a Pitch

> Use to start a conversation with someone you want to connect with — not sell to immediately.

Write a casual, genuine DM opener to [name or type of person]. I want to start a real conversation, not pitch immediately. I genuinely [admire their work / relate to their content / have a connection point]. Keep it under 3 sentences. No "I wanted to reach out" energy.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Your post about [topic] stopped my scroll — that line about [specific thing] was exactly what I needed to hear this week. How long have you been building in this space?"

PROMPT 20

Describing What You Do in One Sentence

> Use to nail your elevator pitch — for bios, intros, DMs, anywhere.

Help me write a one-sentence description of what I do. I am [your name]. I [what you do]. My clients are [who you serve]. The result I help them get is [outcome]. Write 5 different versions — ranging from casual to professional — and let me pick the one that sounds most like me.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

- → I teach women how to use AI to run their business without burning out.
- → I help women entrepreneurs turn AI tools into real income.
- → I build AI systems for women who are done doing everything manually.
- → I explain AI in plain English — and show you how to make money with it.
- → Founder of Canopy Academy — I help women build profitable businesses with AI.

PROMPT 21

Responding to 'How Much Do You Charge?'

> Use when someone asks your price before you've had a real conversation.

Write a response to someone asking "how much do you charge?" before I know what they need. I want to answer in a way that opens the door to a real conversation instead of just throwing out a number. My services range from [price range]. Keep it short and confident.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Great question — it depends on what you're looking to solve. My work ranges from [low] to [high] depending on scope and timeline. Tell me a bit more about what you're working on and I can give you a clear answer."

PROMPT 22

Following Up After Sending a Proposal

> Use 3-5 days after sending a proposal with no response.

Write a follow-up message to [name] who received my proposal [timeframe] ago and hasn't responded.
Keep it short, warm, and pressure-free. I just want to know if they have questions or if the timing isn't right.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], just wanted to make sure the proposal landed okay — sometimes these things get buried. Happy to answer any questions or hop on a call if it would help. No rush, just want to make sure you have everything you need to decide."

PROMPT 23

Asking for a Referral Naturally

> Use with a happy client or colleague who knows your work well.

Write a short, casual message asking [name] if they know anyone who might benefit from [what I do]. I don't want it to feel like a formal referral request — more like a friend asking a friend. Keep it brief and light.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "[Name], I'm opening up [X] spots this month for [service/product]. Thought of you — do you know anyone who might be a fit? No pressure at all, just figured I'd ask since you know what I do. If not, no worries!"

PROMPT 24

Handling 'I Need to Think About It'

Use when a prospect says they need time before deciding.

Write a response to a prospect who said "I need to think about it" after I presented my offer. I want to acknowledge their response without being pushy, offer to answer any lingering questions, and give them a soft deadline if appropriate. Keep it confident and brief.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Totally understand — this is a real decision. Take the time you need. If any questions come up while you're thinking it through, I'm here. Just so you know, I'm holding the spot until [date] — after that I'll open it up. No pressure either way."

SECTION 5 OF 5

V

Planning Your Week Like a CEO

Stop winging it. Start running your business like you mean it.

PROMPT 25

Weekly Priority Setting

> Use every Monday morning to set your top 3 focus areas.

Help me prioritize my week. Here's everything on my plate: [list all your tasks and projects]. My biggest goal this month is [goal]. Help me identify the top 3 things I should focus on this week that will actually move that goal forward. Push back on anything that's not necessary right now.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> "Based on your goal of [goal], here are your top 3 priorities this week: (1) [task], because [reason], (2) [task], because [reason], (3) [task], because [reason]. The following items can wait until next week or be delegated: [list]."

PROMPT 26

Breaking a Big Goal into Daily Actions

> Use when a goal feels too big to start.

I have a goal: [describe the goal]. The deadline is [date]. Help me break it into a week-by-week plan and then give me the 3 specific actions I need to take this week to start. Be direct — I don't need motivation, I need a plan.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> A clear week-by-week breakdown with specific, actionable tasks for each phase — starting with what to do today.

PROMPT 27

Writing a Week of Content Topics in One Go

> Use Sunday or Monday to plan your entire week of content in 10 minutes.

Help me plan 5 content pieces for this week. My business is [what you do]. My audience is [who you serve]. My goal with content this week is [grow audience / drive sign-ups / build trust / promote offer]. Give me 5 topic ideas — one per day — with a one-line angle for each. Keep them specific and scroll-worthy, not generic.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

- → Monday: "The real reason women aren't using AI yet (it's not what you think)"
- → Tuesday: Behind-the-scenes of how I run my [process] using AI
- → Wednesday: "What I'd do differently if I were starting my business today"
- → Thursday: A client result story (with their permission)
- → Friday: One prompt you can use this weekend to [specific task]

PROMPT 28

Identifying What to Delegate or Automate

> Use when you feel overwhelmed and like you're doing too much yourself.

Here are all the tasks I do in my business every week: [list everything]. Help me identify: (1) what I should keep doing because it requires my expertise, (2) what I should delegate to someone else, and (3) what could be automated with AI or a tool. Be direct.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> Three clear columns: Keep, Delegate, Automate — with specific recommendations for each task on your list.

PROMPT 29

End-of-Week Review

> Use every Friday to close out the week with clarity.

Help me do a quick end-of-week review. Here's what I accomplished this week: [list]. Here's what didn't get done: [list]. Here's what felt hard or draining: [list]. Based on this, help me: (1) identify what to carry into next week, (2) notice any patterns I should fix, and (3) name one win I should actually celebrate.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> A clear, honest review with carry-overs, one pattern observation, and a named win — so you end the week with direction, not just exhaustion.

PROMPT 30

Creating a Simple Business SOP

> Use to document any process you do repeatedly so you (or someone else) can follow it.

Help me write a simple standard operating procedure (SOP) for [task you do regularly]. Break it into numbered steps. Write it as if explaining to someone with no context. Include what tools are needed, what the goal is, and what a successful result looks like. Keep it practical, not corporate.

SAMPLE OUTPUT

> A clean, numbered SOP document you can save, share, or hand off — ready to use immediately.
